COVID-19 Procedures: Following government guidance, we have introduced a number of new measures to keep visitors to JORVIK Viking Centre safe, including restricting the number of people in the attraction, ensuring social distancing and adding extra cleaning and hygiene precautions for visitors, staff and volunteers.

Our procedures have gained the 'Good to Go' certification from Visit England, so visitors can be assured that we have followed government and industry COVID-19 guidelines. Our website offers further information on these measures, under Social distancing and safety, but we require all schools intending on visiting the attractions to make use of COVID-19 Advice for Visiting Schools document, which contains important information for teachers undertaking a school trip with us. Further references to our new COVID-19 procedures occur in red text throughout this document.

Access: JORVIK Viking Centre is completely accessible for people who are wheelchair users although fire regulations require that we permit no more than one person who uses a wheelchair into the building. It is essential for you to inform us of any pupils or staff who are wheelchair users in your group when you are making your booking so that we can guarantee access and support on your arrival. To aid social distancing, the capacity for the number of school groups admitted in a day has been reduced, allowing for school groups visiting the attraction to maintain social distancing from each other.

Synopsis

The JORVIK Viking Centre experience is hosted by a number of our Viking team members, who will guide you through a series of educational talks and activities on a variety of Viking topics. As well as learning more about how the archaeological remains of the Viking city of Jorvik were discovered and analysed, you can also experience life in the 10th century for yourself on our famous ride around a bustling recreated Viking street.

Please be aware that the content of our attractions includes human remains, and briefly touches on sensitive topics such as death, illness, injury, and slavery, although these topics are not the major focus of any schools offer, unless otherwise stated.

On Booking

JORVIK Visits: Use the information provided on our Education webpages to choose which activities you wish to book and to view our pricing. You should also decide if you want to book a joint visit with another of our attractions; we offer discounted tickets for joint visits.

On Visiting

COVID-19 Procedures: Following government guidance, we have introduced a number of new measures to keep visitors to JORVIK Viking Centre safe, including restricting the number of people in the attraction, ensuring social distancing and adding extra cleaning and hygiene precautions for visitors, staff and volunteers.

Arrival: You will be provided with a set entry time for each of the groups you have booked to visit JORVIK. Each group will need to arrive no earlier than 10 minutes before your scheduled entry time. Make yourself known to the staff members positioned near the admissions door, who will ask your group to stand in the pre-booked waiting area, which is marked by a barrier along the side of the building.

If you are going to be late, please notify our Reservations team as soon as possible before arrival so we can try to make arrangements to accommodate late entry for your group. Please note that if your group is late we may have to cut down or remove activities in order for you to keep to your schedule.

As you enter the attraction, a thermal camera will detect if any member of your school party has a raised temperature. If a member of your party is found to have a persistent elevated temperature your group will not be permitted to enter the attraction.

Bags: Unfortunately there are no storage facilities at this site and personal belongings should be kept with their owners at all times.

Toilets: Male, female and accessible toilets are available at JORVIK. These are located before the ride, and are limited to one facility of each type. It is highly recommended that you make alternative arrangements to use public facilities ahead of your entry to JORVIK so as not to impact on your visitor experience. If you have a booking at DIG more comprehensive facilities are available there.

Please note that JORVIK is now exclusively one-way; with the exception of health needs and emergencies, the only opportunity for children to use the toilet facilities will be at the start of your visit.

Gift Shop: Due to the restricted space, we are unable to safely offer shopping time in the gift shop to school parties at this time. Souvenirs are still available to purchase by pre-ordering our Souvenir Packs and can be paid for and collected from the shop when exiting. Visit our webpages to learn more about Souvenir Packs.

Schools Experience Outline

The schools experience currently on offer at JORVIK Viking Centre has been amended to reflect that we are currently not offering any artefact handling opportunities due to our COVID-19 procedures. Hand gel stations are available to use at regular intervals throughout the attraction, and necessary touch points are minimal: handrails, commentary selection for the ride, and activity boards in the gallery area.

Discover Coppergate: The children will be introduced to the history of the Vikings and the excavation that uncovered the remains of the 10th-century city of Jorvik through an interactive talk from one of our Viking guides, learning how the dig unearthed evidence of Viking settlement in the city and how archaeologists interpret these discoveries. Pupils will be able to view a detailed reconstruction of how the excavation appeared to the archaeologists and will be prompted to try interpreting some of the features.

Your group will then be directed to the ride. On each capsule there are six seats. There will need to be an adult on the first and last capsules. It is recommended that you plan your groups for the ride before arrival and bring them into the centre in these groups.

All visitors must use hand sanitiser before boarding and after exiting the ride.

The Ride: The ride has been designed to show what life might have been like on the Viking street of Coppergate in around the year 960AD. The ride is set in that year as dating analysis of the timbers found during the Coppergate dig indicates that the timber-built buildings were constructed and used during this time. This date corresponds with the period described in historical sources as occurring immediately after King Eric Bloodaxe's exile from the city of Jorvik, after which the city returned to Anglo-Saxon control.

The replica houses have been built on the exact footprints of the original archaeological remains and the activities in each building were represented in the finds around each structure. Several key themes are examined through the scenes that feature Viking characters, including domestic life, homes, crafting and trade. This also highlights the potential for a range of ethnicities living in the city, influencing the languages spoken, the religious practices followed and touches on the fact that slavery was a part of Viking life.

The ride is now even longer at 16 minutes so there is plenty of time to absorb the sights, sounds and smells of Viking life and watch the inhabitants of Jorvik going about their daily lives on the street of Coppergate.

The Galleries: After the ride, your group will be guided through our artefact galleries by members of our Viking team, where you will have the chance to view many important and unique archaeological objects unearthed on-site from 1000 years ago.

Following a focussed talk introducing the themes of the gallery, it's time to get your investigative hats on: in our newly extended group investigation activity, your class will be split into smaller groups of 4-8 children and directed to different areas of the room to examine the objects displayed in the cases. A prompt card will give them key objects to spot and questions to think about before they are brought back together to report back to the group on their findings.

You will then have the option to explore the rest of the gallery space independently, before exiting via the staircase and through the Gift Shop.
